

ISSN: 2249-7315

Vol. 11, Issue 9, September 2021

SJIF – Impact Factor = 8.037 (2021)

DOI: 10.5958/2249-7315.2021.00037.X

PSYCHOLOGICAL LAYER AND NATIONALITY IN COMMUNICATION

Feruzakhon Karimova*

*Junior Research Fellow (PhD),
Institute of Uzbek Language, Literature and Folklore of the Academy of Sciences,
Republic of UZBEKISTAN

ABSTRACT:

The article discusses the psychological and national strata of communication. The study of aspects related to the mental states of people in the course of communication also serves as a bridge connecting the sciences of linguistics and psychology. From an early age, people create their own cognitive process based on the predominance of different senses in knowing the world. They use not only linguistic knowledge in naming and interpreting objects in the universe, but also impulses (personal emotional perceptions) that affect their perceptions.

KEYWORDS: Linguistics, Communication, Psychology, Nationality, Spiritual World.

REFERENCES

1. Mahmudov N. (2012) Looking for ways to study the language perfectly. Uzbek language and literature. – Tashkent. - № 5. – pp. 5
2. Aliev I. (2012) Pedagogy and psychology. – Tashkent: Science and Technology. – p. 115. Source: <https://klex.ru/cbe>
3. Nurmonov, A., Yuldashev B. (2001) Linguistics and natural sciences. – Tashkent: Sharq. – p. 63.
4. Communication psychology. Study guide. – Tashkent. 2003. – p. 4
5. Mahmudov N. (1998) Language. - Tashkent: Writer. – pp. 6-7.
6. G'oziev E. (2013) Methodology of psychology. – Tashkent: Noshir. – p. 22.
7. Piz A. (2016) Body language. - Tashkent: Gafur Gulom Publishing House. – pp. 22-23.