ABSTRACT

This article discusses the preservation of ancient religious beliefs and the modernization of Islamic traditions in the customs, traditions and ceremonies associated with the wedding of the people of the Jizzakh oasis. The idea of moving to another social group was also reflected in such rituals as "opening the door", "opening the door", "opening the hole" in connection with the preparation of the bride for a new activity. The first ceremony that initiates a wedding ceremony is a gift. The first information about the matchmakers can be found in the Orkhon-Enasoy inscriptions of the VII-VIII centuries.

KEYWORDS: Historical ethnographic space, customs and traditions, wedding, matchmaker, groom nawkar, bride greetings, face opened chilla.
