

DEMONSTRATION OF VERBAL INNOVATION IN CHILDREN'S WORD-CREATION (LINGVOPRAGMATIC APPROACH)

Munavvara A. Kurbanova***

*Associate Professor,
Doctor of Philological Sciences,
Tashkent State University,
The Uzbek Language and Literature named after Alisher Navoi,
Tashkent, UZBEKISTAN
Email Id: munavvara2013@yandex.ru

DOI: 10.5958/2249-7315.2022.00005.3

---

ABSTRACT

The article discusses the pragmatic nature of children's verbal innovations, discusses the level of study in world linguistics of individual neologisms that appear in their word creation. The reasons for the occurrence of innovations in children's speech were explained, and lingvopragmatic problems in this regard were identified. In children's communicative activity, speech innovation is considered to be the result of inappropriate expression of words, misuse of words, children's lack of knowledge and misinterpretation of the object of speech, social relations between the child and the addressee, their territorial identification.

KEYWORDS: Ontolinguistics, Pragmalinguistics, Linguistic Unit, Children's Speech, Speech Innovation, Communicative Situation, Context, Propozition, Pragmatic Barrer, Lingvistik Presuppozition, Deixis, Connotation.

---

REFERENCES :

1. Sodiqova M. The word itself is sweet, and the word sweet. Tashkent: Young Guard; 1972.
2. Vygotsky LS. Imagination and creativity in childhood. Moscow: Enlightenment; 1999.
3. Cheremukhina GA, Shakhnarovich AM. Children's word creation and syntactic theory of word formation. Psycholinguistic problems and language learning. Moscow: Science; 1976.
4. Zeitlin SN. Innovations as a product of the child's speech activity. Children's speech: problems and observations. Sat. scientific works. 1989.
5. Gridina TA. Ontolinguistics. Language in the mirror of children's speech. 2nd Ed. St. Petersburg: Flinta, 2006.
6. Khakimov M. Fundamentals of Uzbek pragmalinguistics. Tashkent: Akademnashr; 2013.
7. Safarov O. Hidden languages of children. Uzbek language and literature. Tashkent; 2009.