ABSTRACT

Our country is on the path to building a strong democratic state and civil society based on market relations. The reforms being implemented in this direction will be reflected in a set of measures, such as the development of legal awareness of our citizens, the development of legal culture, the formation of an active civic position. In this regard, the actions taken by the state are not enough to achieve our goals. Because civil society is, first of all, self-control. That is why the task of strengthening social control in all spheres in our country remains a pressing issue today. This article provides a philosophical analysis of the content of social control, its specific principles, the importance of social control in the formation of civil society, and, most importantly, the role of social control in the legal socialization of the individual.
