

PERSIAN LANGUAGE AND ITS HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT

Alisher Nematovich Goziyev*

*Senior Lecturer,

Department of Foreign Languages,

Tashkent State University of Uzbek Language and Literature named after Alisher Navoi,

Email id: Alisher.goziyev@mail.ru

DOI: 10.5958/2249-7315.2022.00283.0

ABSTRACT

Persian is one of the 10 oldest languages, including Tamil, Lithuanian, Icelandic, Hebrew, Macedonian, Basque, Finnish, Georgian, and local Irish. Persian has gone through three stages of development in its long history. These are the ancient, medieval and modern stages of development of the Persian language. This article discusses about Persian language itself and its historical development.

KEYWORDS: Persian Language, Development, Ancient Language, Stages, Written Monuments, Grammatical Structure, Historical Books.

REFERENCES:

1. Rubinchik Yu. A., Sovremenniy persidskiy yazik, M., 1960; Peysikov L. S, Leksikologiya sovremennogo persidskogo yazika
2. Ismoilov, Anvar. "Fors tili" O'zME. F-harfi Birinchi jild. Toshkent, 2000-yil
3. Sokolov S.N., Drevnepersidkiy yaznk. V kn.: Osnovn iranskogo yaznkoznaniya. Drevneiranskiye yaznki, M., 1979.