ABSTRACT

Civilization is understood as the holistic progressive development of mankind in the post-savage and barbaric period, the sum of social relations that ensure the existence of culture. When such a definition of the concept of "civilization" is given, it becomes clear that the civilizational approach to social development is more meaningful than the formational approach. Because if a civilization has a global character, the formation will have a local character.

KEYWORDS: Civilization, Progress, Cultural Aspect, Technocrat Class, Technical Progress, Scientific Information, Integration, Social Relations.
